WEDNESDAY CLIFF CHECK

Worked example: one lost week, two leads

Distribution crew · late truck · week already gone by Wednesday

Monday the pick target goes on the board. A late truck and two call-offs put the week out of reach by Wednesday afternoon.

Lead A keeps the speech going: we can still win this. Thursday the pace goes flat. Friday is worse. Monday starts in a hole made of re-picks.

Lead B runs the Cliff Check. The number is gone. Two owned jobs for the rest of the week: zero mis-picks, and the dock labels that keep causing re-picks get fixed before Friday.

Thursday the crew has a target they can see. Friday both land. Monday starts without the re-pick hour that has been eating the start of every week.

Same lost week. One lead spent their word. The other earned some back.

What Lead B wrote on the card

Box 1 Target:	Pick target for the week (posted Monday)
Still reachable?:	No
Box 3 Job 1:	Zero mis-picks Thu and Fri
Box 3 Job 2:	Dock labels fixed before Friday ends
Box 4 Friday:	Both jobs landed; Monday inherits a clean start

In sports they call it garbage time. On a floor, Wednesday is when you name it.
